FOR MANDATORY SUBMISSION TO NLRB GENERAL COUNSEL, PER MEMO GC-21-04

Overview

Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

Employees have a Section 7 right to discuss wages, hours, and other terms and conditions of employment with fellow employees, as well as with nonemployees, such as union representatives. Thus, an employer's confidentiality policy that either specifically prohibits employee discussions of terms and conditions of employment— such as wages, hours, or workplace complaints—or that employees would reasonably understand to prohibit such discussions, violates the Act. Similarly, a confidentiality rule that broadly encompasses "employee" or "personnel" information, without further clarification, will reasonably be construed by employees to restrict Section 7-protected communications. See Flamingo-Hilton Laughlin, 330 NLRB 287, 288 n.3, 291-92 (1999).

Mandatory Submission to Advice, NLRB Memorandum GC 21-04 (Aug 12, 2021)

“Over the past several years, the Board has made numerous adjustments to the law, including a wide array of doctrinal shifts. These shifts include overruling many legal precedents which struck an appropriate balance between the rights of workers and the obligations of unions and employers. At the same time, there are many other issues that also should be carefully considered to determine whether current law ensures that employees have the right to exercise their fundamental Section 7 rights both fully and freely. Submissions of these topics to Advice will allow the Regional Advice Branch to reexamine these areas and counsel the General Counsel’s office on whether change is necessary to fulfill the Act’s mission.

Employer handbook rules

- Cases involving the applicability of The Boeing Co., 365 NLRB No. 154 (2017), (imposing a new framework for determining the legality of workplace/employee handbook rules). This includes, but is not limited to, Boeing’s applicability to confidentiality rules, non-disparagement rules, social media rules, media communication rules, civility rules, respectful and professional manner rules, offensive language rules and no camera rules. This further includes applicability of L.A. Specialty Produce Co., 368 NLRB No. 93 (2019) (changing General Counsel’s initial burden in rules cases to not only establish that a reasonable employee would interpret a facially neutral rule as potentially interfering with the exercise of Section 7 rights, but that work rules should be judged from the perspective of the objectively reasonable employee who is aware of his legal rights and also interprets work rules as they apply to the “everydayness” of his job).
- Cases involving the applicability of AT&T Mobility, 370 NLRB No. 121 (2021) (overruling prong three of Lutheran Heritage Village-Livonia, 343 NLRB 646 (2004), and finding that an otherwise lawful work rule applied to restrict Section 7 activity remains lawful and that rescission of such rule in those circumstances is inappropriate).”

Apple Handbook Policies Suspected to Violate NLRA § 7 Rights

Policy: Public Speaking and Press Inquiries<sup>1 2</sup>

“All public speaking engagements that relate to Apple’s business<sup>3</sup> or products must be pre-approved by your manager and Corporate Communications. All inquiries<sup>4</sup> from the press or the financial analyst community must be referred to Corporate Communications or Investor Relations.”

“A member of the press would like to speak with me about Apple’s unannounced product or services<sup>5</sup> is that Ok? You must get pre-approval from Corporate Communications before speaking with the press about these topics.”

Policy: Apple Confidential Information (Business Conduct & Global Compliance)<sup>6</sup>

URL: <https://businessconduct.apple.com/policies/secretcy/confidential-apple-information/>

“Even within Apple, confidential information should only be shared on a need-to-know basis.”

<sup>1</sup> We found the following rules were unlawfully overbroad because employees reasonably would read them to ban protected communications with the media. Employees are not "authorized to speak to any representatives of the print and/or electronic media about company matters" unless designated to do so by HR, and must refer all media inquiries to the company media hotline. “ We determined that the above rule was unlawful because employees would reasonably construe the phrase "company matters" to encompass employment concerns and labor relations, and there was no limiting language or other context in the rule to clarify that the rule applied only to those speaking as official company representatives. Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

<sup>2</sup> Unlawful: "[A]ssociates are not authorized to answer questions from the news media. . . . When approached for information, you should refer the person to [the Employer's] Media Relations Department." "[A]ll inquiries from the media must be referred to the Director of Operations in the corporate office, no exceptions." These two rules contain blanket restrictions on employees' responses to media inquiries. We therefore concluded that employees would reasonably understand that they apply to all media contacts, not only inquiries seeking the employers' official positions. Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

<sup>6</sup> "[I]f something is not public information, you must not share it." We determined that the following confidentiality rules were facially unlawful, even though they did not explicitly reference terms and conditions of employment or employee information, because the rules contained broad restrictions and did not clarify, in express language or contextually, that they did not restrict Section 7 communications: Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

<sup>79</sup> The implication that employees must report wage and hour complaints only internally is unlawful, T-Mobile NLRB (2015)

<sup>80</sup> Unlawful because it prohibited disclosure of the Wendy’s handbook, which contains employment policies, to third parties such as union representatives or the Board. Because employees have a Section 7 right to discuss their wages and other terms and conditions of employment with others, including co-workers, union representatives, and government agencies, such as the Board, a rule that precludes employees from sharing the employee handbook that contains many of their working conditions violates Section 8(a)(1). NLRB v Wendy’s International LLC (2014)

“It’s your decision whether or not to engage in these or other online communications. But keep in mind that Apple’s policies and guidelines apply to any activities that affect your performance, the performance of other Apple employees, or Apple’s business interests. This is true even if you blog, tweet, write, post, comment, share visual or other media, or otherwise communicate online outside of work — even if you do not identify yourself as an Apple employee. So before you click or tap “send,” keep these guidelines in mind:

Protect Apple’s confidential information.<sup>83</sup> As we conduct business around the world, our competitive strategy requires us to keep Apple’s intellectual property and proprietary information confidential.<sup>84</sup> This includes non-public information<sup>85</sup> such as the timing, pricing, and design of Apple products; Apple’s overall business performance; and the layout of our stores (including back-of-house areas, which contain competitive business operations information, customer data, sales targets, and other proprietary information<sup>86</sup>). All Apple employees have an obligation to protect this information. Doing so respects the significant amount of time and energy Apple puts into introducing our customers to new products and new retail stores. For more information on confidentiality, see the Intellectual Property Agreement you signed when you were hired. You can also learn more about protecting Apple’s assets and confidential information in Apple’s Business Conduct Policy.”

“Be polite. We want you to be yourself, but you should also be respectful in posts, tweets, and other online communications.<sup>87</sup> Do not use vulgar, intimidating, discriminating, or harassing language.<sup>88 89</sup>

<sup>86</sup> Lafayette and Lutheran: Rule prohibiting employees from revealing personal information regarding co-workers was unduly broad and could reasonably be interpreted as restraining Section 7 activity. A rule that precludes employees from discussing terms and conditions of employment, or sharing information about themselves or their fellow employees with each other or with non-employees violates Section 8(a)(1). Rule stating that no post may violate privacy or confidential rights of any person or entity provided no definition or guidance as to what the Employer considered to be private and confidential. Rule could reasonably be interpreted as prohibiting protected employee discussions of wages and other terms and conditions of employment and is therefore overbroad and unlawful, particularly, where the Employer applied it as such.

<sup>87</sup> We found the following rules unlawfully overbroad since employees reasonably would construe them to ban protected criticism or protests regarding their supervisors, management, or the employer in general. “[Me respectful to the company, other employees, customers, partners, and competitors. No “[d]efamatory, libelous, slanderous or discriminatory comments about [the Company], its customers and/or competitors, its employees or management.” Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

<sup>88</sup> Employees also have the Section 7 right to criticize or protest their employer’s labor policies or treatment of employees. Thus, rules that can reasonably be read to prohibit protected concerted criticism of the employer will be found unlawfully overbroad. For instance, a rule that prohibits employees from engaging in. “disrespectful,” “negative,” “inappropriate,” or “rude” conduct towards the employer or management, absent sufficient clarification or context, will usually be found unlawful. See Casino San Pablo, 361 NLRB No. 148, slip op. at 3 (Dec. 16, 2014). Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)

<sup>89</sup> Unlawful: Do not make “insulting, embarrassing, hurtful or abusive comments about other company employees online,” and “avoid the use of offensive, derogatory, or prejudicial comments.” Because debate about unionization and other protected concerted activity is often contentious and controversial, employees would reasonably read a rule that bans “offensive,” “derogatory,” “insulting,” or “embarrassing” comments as limiting their ability to honestly discuss such subjects. These terms also would reasonably be construed to limit protected criticism of supervisors and managers, since they are also “company employees.” Report of the General Counsel Concerning Employer Rules, NLRB Memorandum GC 15-04 (2015)
